In the midst of his divorce, Shane and I have grown closer than ever. We know people would be upset if they found out about our relationship, but none of that mattered. All that mattered was being together. I will still hoping to find out I was carrying his baby, but so far every test had ended in tears and disappointment. How could I let him know how desperate I was to have his baby? With the pressure of knowing we could be discovered at any moment, and the fear that my family would disown me if they knew, we struggled to contain our dark secret. But we both knew it was just a matter of time before someone would find out that I was Not So Innocent anymore.
